

100 percent of the libraries that work with Teach My Kid to Read are likely or highly likely to learn about and recommend resources like decodable books.

Community literacy solutions that help all children learn to read!

PO Box 8314 • Albany, New York 12208
info@teachmykidtoread.org
www.teachmykidtoread.org

More than ever, parents and caregivers need ways to help young children with their literacy skills, even before they start school.

Similarly, all children should learn to read with the most effective approaches proven to help all children become skilled readers.

With two-thirds of fourth graders not reading proficiently, we don't have time to waste!

OUR WORK

TMKTR is the only nonprofit working hand-in-glove with library systems to help libraries offer collections of decodable books and literacy resources. TMKTR provides education about how we learn to read and where the resources fit so librarians can better serve their communities.

TMKTR believes that libraries are essential to community literacy solutions because they have a built-in system for equity.

Library Programming

Educating librarians about the process of how we learn to read, helping with access to decodable books, and help setting up collections of decodable books and literacy resources.

Community Awareness & Education

Creating events and programs that educate the community about fundamental literacy skills and resources that help all children learn to read.

Literacy Support & Training

Training library contacts or volunteers to initiate literacy programming with recommended resources. (The Roadmap to Reading)

OUR MISSION

Our mission is to provide parents, caregivers, librarians, educators, and anyone interested in literacy education with the tools to help all children learn to read. Teach My Kid to Read helps build awareness in the community about the science of reading, dyslexia, and best instructional practices.

